FRAMING OPTIONS COMPARED:
CANVAS, FRAMED UNDER GLASS, AND BACKLIT STYLES

Our framed art is offered in three different styles. When you place an order, you have the choice of size, frame finish, and framed art style. Want to know the difference between our different framed art styles? Keep reading!

CANVAS STYLE – The image is printed on canvas, with any title or caption printed directly on the image. It is mounted on foam core, sealed with polyurethane, and framed without glass. This lightweight option weighs roughly 2–5 lbs., depending on size

BEST FOR: Casual settings, photographed design projects (no glare), and installations requiring lightweight art that can be hung from an adhesive hook.

FRAMED UNDER GLASS STYLE – The image is printed on paper, mounted to MDF, and secured to the back of the frame under glass, with a ½" gap between the image and the glass. Most images have titles or captions that are applied to the glass as vinyl decals, creating a dimensional shadowbox effect. Finished weight is roughly 5–13 lbs., depending on size.

Our most popular framing option!

BEST FOR: Upscale or luxe spaces and bespoke interiors where refined detail matters. More than a framed image, this style adds depth and interest, with the title appearing to float above the artwork in a shadowbox effect.

BACKLIT STYLE – The image is printed on translucent film and displayed under glass, with a frosted plexiglass panel behind it. Warm white LED lighting runs along the inside back edge of the frame. Most images include a title or caption superimposed on the film. Each piece comes with a transformer plug and a removable inline dimmer switch. Frames are slightly deeper than those of the Canvas and Framed Under Glass styles. Finished weight is roughly 8–15 lbs., depending on size

BEST FOR: Dimly lit, moody spaces that need a focal point, such as bars, lounges, and recreation rooms. The adjustable lighting ranges from a subtle glow to a fully illuminated image. For a seamless look, pair with a recessed wall outlet to hide the cord.
